This transfer course sheet is applicable for applicants applying between August 1st, 2024 and October 15th, 2025.

- CHEM 227 (TCCNS: CHEM 2323) may be substituted for CHEM 222.
- Courses listed must be completed with a C or better.
- Students may have to complete College Algebra (MATH 1314) at their institution before taking MATH 1324 or 1325.
- College Algebra is a transferable course but will not satisfy the Mathematics requirements in this degree plan, and will count toward the total credit hours.

The recommendations below represent what a typical TAMU FIVS student's schedule looks like during the first four semesters. If working to complete an associate degree before transferring, please align your degree plan to satisfy TAMU degree requirements. You may not have to complete the coursework in the sequence below, as certain courses may not be offered at your institution, but this major requires or recommends specific coursework to be completed.

Career & Educational Opportunities

In this major, students learn how to use the life sciences, from DNA to ecology, to analyze crime scene evidence or solve mysteries in industrial, regulatory, or medical settings. This major is excellent for students seeking to enter careers that deal with the collection, preservation, processing and use of evidentiary information to solve problems. Forensic and investigative scientists rely upon state-of-the-art scientific discoveries and technologies as tools to seek answers to critical questions in a variety of settings. Molecular, organismal, environmental, and ecological sources of information are often analyzed and interpreted in industrial, regulatory, legal, medical and associated professions. Graduates will be competitive for employment opportunities in quality assurance laboratories, homeland security and investigative services at local, state and national levels. Graduates will also be well prepared for opportunities to enter post-graduate studies or professional schools including medicine, law, and veterinary medicine.
